THURSDAY, MAR. 18, 1909.

THE grafters are making a mighty effort for a ship subsidy, but not a one favors the repeal of the "protection" laws that have destroyed the U. S. merchant marine.

BEEF MAGNATE ARMOUR predicts cheaper meat the coming summer. Cattle dealers here about evidently don't agree with him, from the price at which grazing cattle are held.

UNCLE SAM has just made it public that he paid the physicians who treated McKinley when he was shot $31,900. One physician got $10,000, a pretty good year's salary for a day or two's work.

THE proposed new tariff bill at present taxes coffee at 4c per lb. The prediction is made that coffee will not be taxed when the bill becomes a law, for the leaders know what it will do for the party at the polls.

PRESIDENT TAFT now has Congress on his hands at his own summons in extraordinary session. He can call them together, but what they will do is another matter. The friends of Taft are not exacting much.

Statesman, Mexico compose the quarrel Salvador and Nicaragua. Like the Philippines, the annexation would do more than it would be worth.

THE head of one of the New England liquor dealers' associations charges John D. Rockefeller with financing the Prohibition movement in order to furnish the people an issue and divert them from trust-busting. If correct it is only another proof of the immortal John D.'s deep and devilish slyness.

THE Texas legislature cut up high jinks last week just before adjourning, only to meet again in extra session. The senate expelled half its members, and the house requested its speaker to resign. The legislative bodies throughout the country are doing much to discredit representative government.

NEARLY all of the Representatives in Congress believed that Uncle Jo Cannon ought to be a belted cat, but most of them acted like mice and re-elected him Speaker. Uncle Jo is past three score and ten and can't live forever. May be when he is gone representative government will be restored.

UNCLE JO CANNON was re-elected Speaker, but the "insurgent" Republicans and the Democrats defeated the motion to re-adopt the old rules that vest so much power in the Speaker. However, Fitzgerald, Democrat of New York, balked the effort to more than slightly amend the old rules.

STANDARD OIL is too strong even for Uncle Sam to buck against. At Chicago on the 16th of the famous $29,000,000 case Judge Anderson instructed the jury to find the Standard Oil Co. not guilty. The public feels that justice has been outraged somehow, but it can't help it. Such things, though, breed momentous mischief sooner or later.

BOSTON detectives think they have found the man who fired the shot that killed Goebel in the person of Wm. J. Howard, nephew of James B. Howard. Wm. J. Howard is charged with killing his wife at New Bedford, Mass., and the detectives traced his career back to the day Goebel was killed. Wm. J. Howard is serving a life sentence for wife murder.

WORD comes out of Washington that no colored man need apply to Taft for a political job in the South simply because he is a colored man.

Thos. H. Carr and sisters Misses Frances and Elizabeth, of Mt. Sterling, visited the family of D. L. Goodan Sunday.

The smallpox scare at Judy has subsided. The citizens declare there has been no smallpox there. Last fall a disease somewhat resembling chickenpox began going through the country. Those who had it early paid little attention to it. As winter wore on the disease became a little more severe, and about three weeks ago the news began to circulate that it was smallpox. A prominent physician pronounced it smallpox, and the authorities decided to quarantine Judy. The citizens strenuously declared that there was no smallpox and the quarantine was abandoned. During the three or four months that the disease had been in the community only four or five persons had been in bed more than a day or two at a time on account of it. It looks a little like genuine smallpox would have done more damage.

SATISFIED HERE.—George had been away a whole week on business and in that time had sent Clara ten letters, six letter-cards, and forty-two picture post-cards. Why, then, did there seem to be a touch of coldness in her greeting when he flew to her arms on his return home?

"Dearest," he said, "what is the matter?"

"Oh, George," she said, "you didn't send a kiss in your ninth letter."

"My precious," he replied, "I had steak and onions for supper that night, and you wouldn't have liked a kiss after onions, would you?"

And such is the unfathomable power of love that she was satisfied and nestled closer to him.

AN OPEN CONGRATULATION.—W. S. Gilbert does not retain all of his humor for use in his librettos. In the early days of his success, when Gilbert and Sullivan were considered by managers as the "sure winners" in the comic opera field, a young woman who was a member of one of the "Pinafore" companies wrote to Gilbert telling him of her approaching marriage with a young man of good position and family. Gilbert congratulated the young woman, and expressed the hope that her future might be prosperous and happy.

Only a little more than a month passed, and another letter from the same girl reached him, in which she stated that her engagement with the young man had been broken and that she had accepted another suitor.

He again replied that he had every confidence in her judgment, and again expressed his hearty wishes for her welfare.

It was almost two months after that Gilbert received a third letter from the same girl, who informed him that young Lord had proposed and that she had accepted him, after breaking her engagement with No. 2.

Gilbert's humor could no longer withstand the temptation, and he wrote: "I desire to congratulate you on your approaching marriage with"—here he placed an asterisk, and in a footnote added: "Here insert the name of the happy man."—English Paper.

GOOD LIES.—There are scores of trappers now engaged in capturing muskrats for the market, but not one of them is having the success of Fred Perkins. This woodsman, who formerly lived in Vermont, says it is a poor day that does not bring him in sixty pelts, and there have been times when the catch reached eighty-five.

Mr. Perkins attributes these results to conscientious work and the additional fact that he uses wildcats to catch the muskrats.

"It may not be generally understood," said Mr. Perkins, "that the wildcat is the natural enemy of the muskrat and delights in killing for the pure sport of the thing, just as the common house cat finds pleasure in life killing
